9 Lerner & Rowe PC,

No. CV-21-01540-PHX-DGC

10 Plaintiff,

ORDER

11 v.

12 Brown Engstrand & Shelly LLC, et al.,

13 Defendants.

14
15
16 Lerner & Rowe PC has filed a complaint alleging various trademark infringement
17 claims against Defendant Brown, Engstrand & Shely LLC, d/b/a The Accident Law Group
18 (“ALG”), and its President and CEO, Joseph Brown. Doc. 1. Defendants move to join
19 Google as a party. Doc. 21. The motion is fully briefed (Docs. 21, 23, 24, 25), and oral 20 argument will not aid the Court’s decision. LRCiv 7.2(f). For reasons stated below, the 21 Court will deny the motion.

22 I. Background.

23 Plaintiff is a law firm specializing in personal injury litigation. Doc. 1 ¶¶ 13-14. It
24 owns several federally registered trademarks, including LERNER & ROWE, U.S.
25 trademark number 6059750. Id. ¶ 17. The trademarks are “assets of substantial value and 26 goodwill.” Id. ¶¶ 19, 24.

27 Defendant ALG also specializes in personal injury law and competes with Plaintiff.
28 Id. ¶ 25. Defendant advertises using Google Ads, previously known as Google AdWords,

1 which allows advertisers to bid on keywords or search terms for a chance to place
 2 advertisements in Google's search results. Id. ¶¶ 28-29. Plaintiff believes that Defendant
 3 Brown, as agent for ALG, has used Google Ads to bid on Plaintiff's trademarks as 4 keywords, including "Lerner Rowe," "Lerner & Rowe," and "Lerner and Rowe." Id. ¶ 31.
 5 As a result, Defendant ALG's advertisements have "prominently appear[ed] at or near the 6 top of the Google search webpage" when a consumer searches for Plaintiff. Id. ¶ 32.
 7 Plaintiff asserts that Defendant ALG's advertisements have resulted in confusion and that 8 consumers may erroneously believe Defendant's services are associated with or endorsed 9 by Plaintiff. Id. ¶¶ 34, 36. Plaintiff asked Defendants to stop using its trademarks as 10 Google Ad keywords, but Defendants insisted that their use of the keywords is non-11 infringing. Id. ¶¶ 38-41.

12 Plaintiff claims trademark infringement, unfair competition, and false designation
 13 of origin and false description under the Lanham Act, 15 U.S.C. §§ 1114, 1117,
 14 1125(a)(1)(A); common law trademark infringement and unfair competition under Arizona
 15 common law; and unjust enrichment under A.R.S. § 44-403. Plaintiff seeks monetary and 16 injunctive relief.

17 II. Failure to Join Necessary Party.

18 A. Legal Standard.

19 A party is "necessary" if it is subject to service of process, its joinder will not deprive 20 the court of subject matter jurisdiction, and at least one of the following conditions is met:

21 (A) in that person's absence, the court cannot accord complete relief among 22 existing parties; or

23 (B) that person claims an interest relating to the subject of the action and is 24 so situated that disposing of the action in the person's absence may:

25 (i) as a practical matter impair or impede the person's ability to protect 26 the interest; or

27 (ii) leave an existing party subject to a substantial risk of incurring 28 double, multiple, or otherwise inconsistent obligations because of the interest.

Fed. R. Civ. P. 19(a)(1).

1 B. Defendants' Motion.

2 Neither party argues that Google is not subject to service of process or that its 3 joinder would destroy the Court's subject matter jurisdiction. See Docs. 21, 24. The 4 Court's inquiry is accordingly whether one of the three conditions of Rule 19(a)(1) is met.

5 Defendants concede that they are not at risk of incurring inconsistent obligations
 6 absent Google's joinder under Rule 19(a)(1)(B)(ii). Doc. 25 at 10. To meet the test for 7 necessity, then, Defendants must show either that the Court cannot accord complete relief
 8 between the existing parties in Google's absence, or that Google claims an interest in the 9 subject of this litigation and disposing of the action without Google would impair or 10 impede its ability to protect that interest. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 19(a)(1)(A)-(B)(i).

11 1. The Court Can Accord Complete Relief Between the Parties.

12 Defendants cite Ninth Circuit case law stating that keyword advertising utilizing
 13 trademarked phrases, while constituting "use in commerce" of the mark under the Lanham
 14 Act, is not per se infringement without some other factor leading to consumer confusion.
 15 Doc. 21 at 10 (citing Network Automation, Inc. v. Advanced Sys. Concepts, Inc., 636 F.3d 16 1137, 1144-45 (9th Cir. 2011); AMF Inc. v. Sleekcraft Boats, 599 F.2d 34 (9th Cir. 1979)).
 17 Defendants argue that the thrust of Plaintiff's complaint is that consumer confusion results
 18 from the appearance of Defendant ALG's ads at or near the top of Google's search engine
 19 result page ("SERP") when a consumer searches for phrases trademarked by Plaintiff. Id.
 20 at 10-11. Defendants further argue that when and how ads are displayed on a SERP is 21 determined by Google's algorithms. Id. at 9. Because bidders themselves do not exercise
 22 complete control over the display of their ads, Defendants argue it is inconceivable that the 23 Court might fashion an order granting Plaintiff relief without having Google "weigh in" or 24 subjecting Google to an order impacting how it displays ads on its SERPs. Id.

25 Plaintiff responds that Google's algorithms and policies are irrelevant to 26 Defendants' infringement of Plaintiff's trademarks. Doc. 24 at 9. Plaintiff asserts that it
 27 is immaterial where Defendant ALG's ads are displayed on Google's SERP – the relevant 28 inquiry is whether consumers searching for Plaintiff's trademarked phrases are "confused,

1 misled, or diverted away” from Plaintiff by Defendant’s ads. Id. Plaintiff notes that one
 2 portion of its requested relief – that Defendants implement Plaintiff’s trademarks as 3 negative keywords – would eliminate all consumer confusion without requiring any input
 4 from or compliance by Google. Id.

5 Defendants argue in response that although the Court might be able to accord
 6 complete relief between the parties with a narrow order that does not affect Google, the 7 Court could find wide-reaching remedies more appropriate. Doc. 26 at 6. Because of this 8 possibility, Defendants argue, the Court should order joinder of Google “just in case.” Id.
 9 at 7. Defendants also assert that the locations, frequencies, and prominence of the displays
 10 of their ads on Google’s SERPS – factors controlled by Google – are “wholly intertwined”
 11 with Plaintiff’s claims. Id.

12 The Court is not persuaded by Defendants’ arguments. Complete relief could be 13 granted by enjoining Defendants from continuing to use Plaintiff’s trademarked phrases as 14 keywords. This is exactly the type of relief Plaintiff seeks; it does not request a general
 15 injunction against Google allowing any advertiser to bid on any trademarked phrase. See 16 Doc. 1 at 13-15.

17 Google’s control of how ads are displayed on its SERPs does not mean that the 18 Court cannot accord complete relief between the parties. Defendants’ argument elides the 19 fact that bidders fundamentally control their own ads by choosing what keywords to bid on 20 and what text appears in an ad. “The fact that [Google] played a role in the facts of the 21 case does not make them subject to mandatory joinder.” Hilton Head Island Dev. Co., LLC
 22 v. DuBois, No. 9:13-cv-3510-RMG, 2014 WL 12615707, at *4 (D.S.C. Oct. 24, 2014).

23 Moreover, while the parties may require information from Google to resolve this 24 dispute, “[a] party is not ‘required’ for Rule 19 purposes . . . merely because the existing 25 parties need to obtain evidence from it.” Florists’ Transworld Delivery, Inc. v.
 26 SendHerFlowers LLC, No. CV 10-09242 DMG (AJWx), 2011 WL 13217939, at *9 (C.D.
 27 Cal. May 6, 2011). The federal rules provide ample tools for non-party discovery.
 28 “Defendants fail to show how the availability of discovery on Google is insufficient or how

1 they would otherwise be prejudiced by its absence.” Florists’ Transworld Delivery, Inc.,
 2 2011 WL 13217939, at *9.

3 2. Google Does Not Have Sufficient Interest in the Litigation.

4 Defendants argue that the relief Plaintiff seeks will “alter the fundamental 5 landscape” in which Google Ads operates by restricting keyword advertising utilizing
 6 trademarked phrases regardless of whether the use is likely to cause confusion. Doc. 21
 7 at 8. Defendants assert that injunctive relief would significantly impact Google’s ability
 8 to allow advertisers to bid on keywords trademarked by their competitors – conduct that 9 Defendants allege is undertaken by millions of advertisers. Id. at 9.

10 The Court is not convinced that Google has a sufficient interest in this case to require 11 joinder. Plaintiff is not seeking the sort of far-reaching order that Defendants assert would 12 affect Google’s interests. Any order will have no binding effect beyond this case and will 13 not impair Google’s ability to sell other trademarked keywords, litigate the propriety of 14 doing so, or sell ad keywords that are not trademarked (undoubtedly most of its business).
 15 See Florists’ Transworld Delivery, Inc., 2011 WL 13217939, at *9 (“[T]he Court declines
 16 to speculate as to how an adverse ruling in this litigation might affect Google’s business
 17 interests.”); Hilton Head Island Dev. Co., LLC, 2014 WL 12615707, at *4 (denying 18 mandatory joinder of search engines in similar litigation).¹

19 Having determined that Google is not a necessary party, the Court need not 20 determine whether its joinder is feasible.

21 IT IS ORDERED that Defendants’ motion to join Google (Doc. 21) is denied.

 outside the pleadings by reference to the record in 1-800 Contacts because the Court finds that “even if Defendant[s’] allegations were properly supported, they would fail to establish that [Google is a] necessary part[y] under Rule 19.” CIT Fin. LLC, 2015 WL 2412154, at
